Riptide Software has partnered with Axosoft, the maker of OnTime Scrum, to launch the OnTime Connector for Salesforce. The OnTime Connector, now available in the Salesforce AppExchange, will enable OnTime users to integrate their agile project data into their Salesforce environment.

“We are excited to partner with Axosoft to develop this new Salesforce integration tool,” said Zenon Rawley, Managing Director at Riptide. “OnTime Scrum is a powerful agile project management platform, and OnTime Connector helps organizations increase project visibility and social collaboration between Salesforce and OnTime, expanding the capability of both of these powerful platforms to help developers work smarter and more efficiently.”

The OnTime Connector lets project development teams streamline their process by providing direct access to their OnTime data in Salesforce. It automatically syncs user stories, help desk issues and work logs, making it easy to generate reports and analyze project data in Salesforce. Chatter integration enables developers and stakeholders to easily collaborate from within Salesforce, letting them add comments dynamically to OnTime ticket notes and reference tickets.

With the OnTime Connector, management and organization leaders will have crystal-clear visibility into the performance of their development projects, all within Salesforce.
