

Sprintometer 6.50 Adds Project BurnDown Chart

Press Release

Posted by:

Posted on : 2012/1/25 4:44:21

The new version v6.50 of freeware tool Sprintometer for Scrum and XP project management has been released on January 21, 2012. Everybody knows Sprint Burn down chart used in Scrum projects but very often managers need to know situation with the whole agile project and specifically they are interested in Project Burn down chart. New version of Sprintometer allows this!

How it works: go to tab called 'Scope Chart' on project level and enter percentage for already estimated sprints in relation to the whole project scope. Sprintometer will automatically generate Burn down chart for the whole project based of scope finished during passed sprints, their duration and average team velocity. Forecast for project finish date will be visible too and you can play with percentage to estimate for example how much scope can be added to meet specific deadline because chart is updating while typing.

You can download for free the new version of Sprintometer at:

<http://sprintometer.com/downloads/sprintometer.zip>